The posse consisted of Hazen of Converse county, Heistand of Natrona county, Lee Devine, foreman of the "Cy" outfil, and seven others. They followed the trail of the robbers almost due north and over high, sandy, rolling prairie. The bandits had eaten lunch at Teapot rocks, twenty-five miles from Casper, where, with field glasses, they could see the country behind them for ten miles, and probably saw their jussisters aproaching. They had been following high ridges, but after leaving Teapot Bocks struck down a draw to the head of Teapot creek and followed along the creek botom for six miles.

At a high cliff of rock the bandits turned abruptity to the left and rode into the rocks. They were seen by the posse and followed closely, one man trailing them while the others rode to the side. Within 200 yards of the rocks Charles Hallaby and E. T. Payton were in the lead. Suddenly two shots rangout and Payton's horse went down with a bullet through its heart. The whole posse dismounted and ran among the rocks for cover. The posse consisted of Hazen of Con-

In a few moments other shots were fired by the robhers, but only two shots were fired in return, as they were completely hidden behind rocks and could not be seen. A few minutes later L. the report of a battle between the out-laws and one of the posses.

Sheriff Heistand, accompanied by Sheriff Hazen of Converse county and a large posse composed in part of cov-boys from the "Cy" outfit, who mave battled with the "Hole-in-the-Wall" outhaws on several occasions, started from Casper Sunday morning. The three bandits had separated from the other three at some point south of Cas-per, and had boldly ridden through Casper between the hours of 2 and 3 in the morning.

the "Robber's Roost" gang of Utah, were in the Union Pacific holding, and most likely planned the robbery. Cassady and Lay have been in the Brown's Peak country, fifty miles northeast of Vernal, Utah, for six weeks, and passed through the northeast part of Carbon county from the "Robber's Roost" less than two months ago. There were then three men traveling together across the country. They passed through Price in the night, and rode fine horses. They stopped ten days on the reservation, and at a house on "the strip," where they remained with friends. From Brown's park to the scene of the robbery is but a short distance, and it is Sheriff Allred's belief that the robbery was done by the three named and those they met from the "Hole-in-the-Wall" section of Wyoming.

Sheriff Allred thinks the original plan was to hold up a train of the Rio Grande Western between Price and Thompson's, but owing to the rush of prospectors of late to the "Robber's Roost" country in southeast Utah in search of copper, plans were changed, and the Union Pacific holdup pulled off instead.
